Re: Request for release of the Kiowa Tribe TERO certified vendor list for academic research

Dear Director Simmons and Members of the Commission:

My name is Elijah S. Moreno. I am an enrolled member of the Coastal Band of the Chumash Nation and a PhD candidate in public policy at Cornell University. My research documents individually owned Native businesses, which today are not systematically counted anywhere. At the Center for Indian Country Development I created the Native Entity Enterprise Dataset (NEED), and I have contributed to the Harvard Project on American Indian Economic Development. Official tribal certification lists are the most authoritative evidence in this work: nothing overrides what a nation says about its own certified businesses.

Request. I respectfully request a copy of the current Kiowa Tribe TERO certified vendor list, in whatever format is easiest for the office. The list would join records from tribal nations across the country in a research dataset whose purpose is to document the scale, industries, and geographic breadth of individually owned Native businesses, and to trace how tribal and federal policy investments, such as Indian preference in contracting, support individual entrepreneurship and shape reservation economies.

Intended use. Findings would appear in academic research and accessible published work, such as an article on how many tribes maintain certified vendor lists and the industries those businesses work in. The Commission decides how Kiowa listings are used, and I commit to the following:

1. Attribution. Any published use of a Kiowa listing will be credited to Kiowa Tribe TERO.
2. Use at the Commission's direction. Listings will appear in published research only if the Commission permits it; otherwise they will be used solely for verification and aggregate statistics.
3. No redistribution. The raw list will not be posted publicly, shared with third parties, sold, or redistributed in any form. It will be stored securely and used only for this research.
4. Correction and withdrawal. The Commission may correct the data or withdraw permission at any time, and I will honor that decision, including removal from future work.
5. Courtesy review. The TERO office will receive a copy of any publication citing the list before it appears.

If the Commission prefers to formalize these terms in a data-sharing or data-use agreement, I will gladly sign one in whatever form the Commission chooses, and I welcome its guidance on what an appropriate process looks like. If the Commission declines, I fully respect that decision. Thank you for your consideration and for the work the TERO office does on behalf of Kiowa businesses and workers.

Respectfully,

Elijah S. Moreno
